Torquato Fund Is Studied

Leader's Budget Department Wants To Look into Uses of Fund

HARRISBURG (UP)—The office of Gov. George M. Leader is investigating the use of a special $1,170,000 fund in the state Labor and Industry Department.

The fund has been built up mainly through fines and penalties levied against employers who fail to make proper returns in their unemployment compensation payments. It may be used for payroll purposes, labor surveys and similar activities.

Records of the fund were turned over to Budget Secretary Andrew M. Bradley last week. It was reported that the administration will look into the specific duties of persons who have been or are now on the payroll of the special fund.

r. John H. Ferguson, secretary of administration in the governor's office, said the request for the records of the fund in the department's Bureau of Employment Security was made because the governor's biennial budget is being prepared "and we have to take into account all existing monies."

Job Is Suspicion

"It's our job to be suspicious," Ferguson said. "We're the eyes and ears of governor on fiscal matters. There is no special reason for us to be suspicious, but we felt the time had come to satisfy our curiosity. All we're doing is asking for an accounting of what goes on in the fund."

Ferguson, who has supervision over budget matters, said there has been "long-standing disagreement" over the degree of control that should be exercised over federally-financed programs.

"The special fund was created by federal law and what it should be used for is poorly defined," he said. "The fund is peculiar and raises a question of policy. The way it stands now it's a dangling fund and can be used at the discretion of the secretary of labor and industry. Actually, I understand it is being administered more honestly than it has been

Doctrine Can Prevent U. S. Troops—Dulles

WASHINGTON (UP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today there is "very great likelihood" American troops will have to fight in the Middle East unless Congress approves the Eisenhower Doctrine resolution.

But "if this resolution passes," he added, "there is very little likelihood" that U. S. forces would have to go to war in that crisis-ridden region.

Dulles is fighting hard for the President's request for standby military authority in the face of considerable Democratic skepticism. Sen. Henry M. Jackson said the administration thus far has produced "no evidence of any new (Soviet) threat" in the Middle East which would warrant hasty congressional action.

Jackson challenged Dulles' assertion Monday that the danger of Russian domination in the Middle East poses "the most serious threat" to the United States in a decade.

Joint Meeting

Dulles testified for the second day at a joint meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees.

He estimated at "very much less" than 50-50 the chances of U.S fighting in the Middle East if Congress approves the President's proposal.

"So far there has been no evidence presented that indicates any new threat," Jackson told reporters. "I think the threat was greater a while back."

Dulles sounded his warning in testimony before the combined Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees. He was recalled today for a second full day of questioning on the President's Middle East proposals.

No Advance Notice

Jackson was one of several Democrats ready to question Dulles today as to whether the United States has adequate military forces to meet the threat he warned of.

Mr. Eisenhower has asked Congress to approve a resolution giving him standby authority to use U.S. troops, if necessary, to resist any Soviet aggression in the Middle East. He also requested a $400 million two-year program of economic and military aid to help Middle East nations maintain their independence.

Dulles said Monday there is no evidence "that we know of" that Russia is planning "direct aggression" in the Middle East. But he warned that the Communists "will take every risk that they dare to take in order to win" dominance of the area.

And if the Soviets do decide to move with direct aggression, "I doubt that we would get any advance notice," Dulles said.

Following is the program for the first half:

Mine officials identified the victim as Thomas Scibiur, 27.

Two unidentified miners found his body at 7:45 a. m. when they were riding a man-trip car which struck an object lying across the tracks. Investigating, the workers discovered the victim.

According to reports, Schibiur apparently had fallen from a car earlier and was run over by other trips before he was found.

Shivers Selects Senator

Dallas Attorney Succeeds Daniel; GOP Vote Will Tie the Senate

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP)—Gov. Allan Shivers, an "Eisenhower Democrat," today appointed William A. Blakley, a Dallas attorney and newcomer to Texas politics, to succeed Price Daniel (D-Tex) in the U. S. Senate.

There was no indication whether Blakley will change Democratic control of the Senate by voting with the Republicans. This would result in a 48-48 tie, and throw control to the GOP when Vice President Richard M. Nixon would cast his tie-breaking vote.

"How will Blakley vote?" an executive office spokesman was asked.

"I don't know," was the answer.

Daniel takes office as governor of Texas today, succeeding Shivers.

Immediate Election

Shivers said in his announcement that Blakley will serve "until a successor has been elected and qualified."

Under Texas law, Daniel could call an election immediately. It must be held at a date not sooner than 60 days nor later than 90 days after that time.

"Mr. Blakley will not be a candidate in the special election." Shivers said.

The governor then added:

"Under the law, a 10-day interval is allowed after the appointment of an interim senator before a special election must be called I am not setting the special election at this time, but rather leaving this matter to Governor-elect Daniel. By doing so, if Governor Daniel so desires, any additional days will be allowed for counties to complete their new poll tax rolls, following the deadline for poll tax payments on Jan. 31."

Johnson Claims New Senator Is Democrat

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said today that William A. Blakley, new Texas appointee to the Senate, will vote with the Democrats to continue Democratic control of the Senate.

Johnson said retiring Texas Gov. Allan Shivers telephoned to advise him about Blakley's appointment to the Senate seat vacated by Texas Gov.-elect Price Daniel.

"I believe he will make Texas and the United States an excellent senator," Johnson said of Blakley. "And, of course, he will vote with the Democrats to continue Democratic organization of the Senate."

The present political lineup of the Senate at the start of the new Congress was 49 Democrats and 47 Republicans. If Blakley voted with the Republicans, that would make it 48-48 with Vice President Richard M. Nixon casting the tie-breaking vote to give the GOP control of the Senate.

Ike Continues Tour Of Drought Districts

EN ROUTE WITH EISENHOWER (UP) — President Eisenhower flew back eastward today for a close look at the effects of one of the country's worst droughts in Colorado and Kansas.

The President spent Monday talking to farmers and ranchers and making on - the - spot investigations in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

He spent the night at Davis Monthan Air Force Base in Tucson, Ariz, and took off today for Pueblo, Colo, where he planned an automobile trip through the countryside.

Mr. Eisenhower met a group of Arizonians at breakfast today and listened to their troubles and recommendations for relief. They asked for extension of the emergency hay subsidy to include cottonseed feed.

The last two points Mr. Eisenhower will visit before his plane takes off for Washington tonight are Garden City and Wichita, Kan.

The weather was cold and cloudy at Garden City and Wichita. Garden City reported a temperature of nine degrees at 8 30 a.m. but White House Press Secretary James Hagerty said the presidential plane will land anyway.

At Wichita, where his 4,500-mile drought tour will end, Mr. Eisenhower will speak before a special drought conference, including representatives from 15 states

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T Benson called the Wichita conference to discuss ways and means of offsetting the economic effects of dry periods that have plagued the great plains for the last eight years.

Mr. Eisenhower is not expected to offer any administration plans for drought relief at the Wichita meeting. Aides have indicated he will wait for plans to come from the meeting itself.

The President, accompanied by Benson and Secretary of Interior Fred A. Seaton, traveled from San Angelo, Tex, Monday to Woodward, Okla., to Clovis, N M, and to Tucson, Ariz, in the far Southwest where he spent the night. Mr. Eisenhower walked, rode, and flew through the dust areas Monday in temperatures ranging from 18 degrees to 73 degrees. He was followed by dozens of reporters and photographers and was seen by thousands of citizens of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, and Arizona.

Uniontown Bank Employe Enters Innocent Plea

PITTSBURGH (UP) —Joe Anne Ryland, 27, today was ordered to appear before a federal grand jury on charges of embezzling $17,500 while head bookkeeper at the Gallatin National Bank in Uniontown.

The bespectacled Tarrs, Pa., woman entered a formal plea of "not guilty" when arraigned Monday before US Commissioner Alex McNaugher

Paul Malone, president of the Gallatin bank, said, however, Miss Ryland "readily admitted the shortages" Malone said the bookkeeper had already made restitution of $5,000.

Pending the grand jury action Miss Ryland was freed on $5,000 bond

A bank spokesman said a routine audit had disclosed the irregularities Miss Ryland had been an employe of the bank for the past nine years.

Five Fire Companies Answer Alarm; Four Page Paper Printed

TARENTUM, Pa. (UP) — A fire which apparently started in a faulty gas line wrecked the publishing plant of the Tarentum Valley News today, causing damage estimated at upwards of $300,000.

Five volunteer fire companies battled the blaze for more than three hours in near-zero temperatures before bringing it under control.

The daily newspaper's staff, up through the night covering the blaze, set up temporary headquarters in the nearby Ferver Funeral Home and put together a four-page edition which will be printed at another newspaper plant in Oakmont, Pa.

Three firemen were overcome by smoke. Others suffered frostbite.

The flames started in the stereotyping section on the top floor of the two - story plant. The fire wrecked the linotype and stereotype departments and burned off 2-3 of the roof. Water soaked press equipment and flooded three carloads of newsprint and the editorial and business offices of the newspaper.

Plan Publication

Publisher Eugene A. Simon said the fire would not interrupt publication..."even if it has to be a mimeograph job."

The blaze erupted about 12.15 a.m. Flames shot as high as 20 feet into the air, lighting the sky over this northern Allegheny County community.

Three fire companies were dispatched to the scene immediately. Two other companies were called after the flames first appeared to die down then reappeared in greater force.

Fire Chief Esler W. Hays, who estimated damage at "roughly $200,000." said the flames were confined to the rear section of the second floor of the main building. The blaze apparently broke out in a gas-heated lead casting pot in the stereotype department.

Officials of the newspaper later raised the damage estimate to more than $300,000.

Simon was summoned to the plant a few hours before the blaze when the gas supply suddenly stopped in the caster, indicating a possible leak in the feed pipe.

Hays said the flames shot from the caster to the false ceiling above, where they quickly spread among the rafters. In a burst of flames, the rear section of the roof collapsed, ruining the expensive equipment below.

While firefighters fought the blaze, executives of publications in neighboring communities volunteered the use of their equipment to guarantee the publication of the Valley News this afternoon.

One offer came from Gerald Coy, business manager of the New Kensington Dispatch.

Mrs. Simon, wife of the Tarentum publisher, told the United Press:

"We'll do our best to get out a paper this afternoon...no matter what."

Two Pittsburgh Attorneys Will Defend Nelson

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Two Pittsburgh attorneys have indicated a willingness to defend five Western Pennsylvania Communists accused of conspiring against the government.

Ira Hill, president of the Allegheny County Bar Assn., told Federal Judge Rabe F. Marsh the unidentified attorneys would take the cases of Communist boss Steve Nelson and his co-defendants provided they were paid

Judge Marsh ordered Nelson, William Albertson, James Dolsen, Benjamin Careathers and Irving Weissman to hire their own lawyers or have counsel appointed by the court. Nelson said he and his associates were broke and were unable to obtain free legal assistance.

Nelson asked that if the court appointed the attorneys, he and his co-defendants would like a chance to approve them. Judge Marsh said defendants could not reject court-appointed lawyers

The five men face trial for a second time on charges of violating the Smith Act by conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the government Their original conviction was tossed out by the U.S. Supreme Court because of possibly "tainted" testimony offered by Joseph Mazzei of Pittsburgh, a government witness against Nelson.

Executive Board of USW Hears Appeals by 'Rebels'

CHICAGO (UP) — The United Steelworkers Executive Board today took under advisement appeals by five "rebel" members who claimed they were denied places on the ballot for international offices.

The five are backers of Don C. Rarick, 37, a millhand from McKeesport, Pa., who is seeking to replace David J. McDonald as president of the union.

The board, which includes McDonald, Vice President Howard R. Hague and Secretary-Treasurer I. W. Abel, heard testimony from the "rebels" and then adjourned after midnight without a decision.

Rarick, candidate of the dues protest committee for union president, established separate headquarters in a hotel across town from the 36-member executive committee to await the ruling.

The five protesting members are Frank O'Brien, Pittsburgh, Gerald Kennedy, Philadelphia, and Walter Ross, Baden, Pa., seeking nominations for district director; Michael Wallace, McKeesport, for teller, and Walter Bocek, West Mifflin, Pa., for international delegate.

Rarick said his group expected "an answer" from the board Wednesday, the deadline under the union constitution for ballots to be in the hands of the recording secretary.

"We very definitely believe we will win the appeals," Rarick continued.

"The union should be given back to the rank and file where it belongs," he said. "The members feel the union is getting away from them. They feel it has become a union among officers."

Board members refused to comment on the hearing other than to say no immediate decision had been reached and the matter has been taken under advisement.

The appeal involves a union rule which states a man must be nominated by five locals before he can run for international office. The five men charged that union "tellers," who determine the validity of votes, invalidated some of their votes to prevent them from qualifying.

"In one case the tellers said my votes were no good because they didn't have the union seal on them," Kennedy said. "But nobody said anything about the fact that the union wouldn't let us have the seal."

Rarick earlier charged he had been offered $250,000 to drop his fight against McDonald. The union president called the charge an "unmitigated lie" and said it was "a base and scurrilous personal attack."

About 1,000 local union officials are attending the two-day regional officers' meeting which opened Monday. They represent about 300,000 steel workers in the South and Midwest.

Winter Recreation Program Is Planned for Young People

An early starting date is anticipated for the Winter recreation program that will be held in the Fayette City Community Center under the direction of Bap Manzini, football coach for the Bellmar High School

The plan will be a part of the state-wide program for providing school districts with a ten-hour weekly schedule of indoor recreation for the remainder of the school year. It was recommended by the Fayette City School Board and accepted by the Community Building Association to replace the program that had been held in previous years by volunteers.

The director will be paid by the local board but the board will be reimbursed by the state. Recreation periods will be held one or two nights each week and on Saturday. No definite schedule or plans for the activities have been announced but additional information will be available at an early date.

The planning of this activity for the youth of the district consumed the greater portion of the business hour of the Association at its regular meeting held Friday evening in the club rooms of the center.

With Dr. Aland C. Dent presiding, reports of the treasurer, J. Hilmar Renstrom were given. Renstrom stated that through the activities of the committee the debt had been cut to slightly more than $6 000 The ways and means chairmen, Howard McCrory and LeRoy Gardner, reported a profit in their activities but appealed for additional support from the townspeople and the Association.

George Hancock reported that the New Year's Eve Dance had been the most outstanding of the four held by the Association This dance, not held for profit, drew one of the largest crowds in its history. A larger number of young people responded to this year's preparations and attended

A 100 per cent response was received from the appeal made to individuals for refreshments served to the teen-age group in party fashion during the intermission.

Attending the meeting were Dr Dent, Mrs. Dent, J. H. Renstrom, Robert Premoshis, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Gardner, Mrs. Jack Stockton, Mrs. Edwin Hindmarsh, Mrs. Joseph Williams, Fred Weightman, Howard McCrory, James Hamer, George Hancock and Mrs. Stephen Rockidge.

Ladies Guild Plans Activities Prior to Lent

The Ladies Guild and Christian Mothers Society of St. Edward's Catholic Church has announced the schedule of social activities to take place prior to the Lenten season.

Mrs. Ruth McGinsky, recently installed as the president, appointed Concetta Rocco, chairman of a fund raising plan to be known as the Investment plan.

Mrs. Rocco is busy this week handing out dollar bills to each member of the organization. At the end of six months the group will have a special meeting when they will give an accounting of their dollar investments and tell how they were able to make it grow into a larger sum.

As a January activity the society will hold a social party on Sunday evening, Jan 27 in the Parish Hall. Ann Lovich and Stella Kroskie are the co-chairmen.

On February 14, a committee under the chairmanship of Margaret Pozum and Ava Dorcan will hold a card party, and to conclude the social events before Lent the organization will hold a Mardi Gras dance The date for this affair has not been announced. Mrs. Edith Ribtarcik and Mrs. Anna B. Waznak will be in charge

Mrs. McGinsky is also looking forward to the last six months of her term and has asked members to bring all of their old keys and Christmas cards to the February meeting

These two items will be worked into a treasure hunt program that will provide fun and funds for the church group.

Ike May Ask Interest Boost In U. S. Bonds

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower may ask Congress to boost the interest rate on US savings bonds to give a shot in the arm to lagging sales, it was disclosed today.

Just when he will make the move is uncertain A high-ranking Treasury official said the administration has been considering such a plan for several weeks But he said "we haven't decided on just how or when yet"

The problem became particularly acute in the latter half of 1956 when investors found they could get more than the 3 per cent interest rate paid on government savings bonds. This made such bonds something less than "one of the world's finest investments," he advertised.

As a result, Americans invested their money in other than savings bonds, and 1956 sales fell about $557 million short of the government's goal of more than $5 6 billion Savings Bond Director John R. Buckley is certain to lower his sights this year.

Child May Be Leukemia Victor

MADISON, Wis. (UP)—Admittedly puzzled medical men meet here today to review the case history of 5-year-old Tommy Ethun who may have broken through one-in-10-million odds by recovering from leukemia.

Eighteen months ago physicians diagnosed Tommy as a victim of leukemia—cancer of the blood for which there is no known cure. Monday, his blood count was normal.

Tommy's doctor, however, cautioned that "it would be cruel to parents of other children with leukemia to believe that we have cured the disease."

The doctor, who asked that his name not be revealed, said today's meeting is merely to hear a review of the case and not necessarily to arrive at any conclusion.

Secret Treatment

He said ethical reasons prohibit him from making known the treatment used or the exact diagnoses except to other doctors. He said, however, that it is possible Tommy never had leukemia.

The doctor said there were three possibilities as to Tommy's condition One was that he could have had a disease that "looked like" leukemia but really wasn't and he recovered. Another was that he could now have leukemia but has had a "remission" so that the disease could flare up again. Finally, he said, Tommy could have had leukemia and recovered, despite his having only "one chance in 10-million."

Recovery Called Miraculous

Today's meeting, a regularly scheduled gathering of the State Medical Society, will hear other case histories of various diseases in addition to Tommy's, the doctor said. But it was expected that the medical riddle of the boy's recovery, which his father Norbert, of nearby De Forest, Wis., called "miraculous," would be near the top of the agenda.

The doctor said he would continue to work on Tommy's case. He said he has used the same treatment for other children and "they are all dead."

He said that he would make tests on the boy "for years to come" and that each month that passes without a recurrence of the symptoms "is in Tommy's favor."

Controversial Army Figure Promoted

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today asked the Senate to approve the promotion of Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, controversial figure in the celebrated Army-McCarthy row, to the rank of major general.

Zwicker's name was included in a long list of military promotions sent to the Senate.

Such promotions normally are approved as a bloc unless a dispute develops over an individual

School Pupils Face Quiz on Polio Program

HARRISBURG (UP) — Some 15,000 Harrisburg school pupils will receive questionnaires this week to determine the degree of protection of the city schools' Salk vaccine program and to encourage the pupils to take the full three-shot series.

Dr. Kermit L. Leitner, head of the Harrisburg Hospital contagious disease annex and director of the schools' Salk vaccine program, said many of the older students have not yet received a single polio vaccine shot.

Dr. Leitner noted that the state has an abundance of the serum and that the Dauphin County Medical Society has urged all persons between the ages of 20 and 50 to take the shots. He said he felt that most of the pupils would obtain the shots from their family physicians.

Senate to Probe Price Boosts

Gas, Oil Increases Studied

WASHINGTON (UP)—Two senators—a Republican and a Democrat—are calling for a Senate investigation of increases in gas and fuel oil prices.

Sen. W. Kerr Scott (D-NC) announced he is drafting a resolution that would create a special Senate committee to do the job

Sen. J. Glenn Beall (R - Md) called on the Senate Banking and Currency Committee to do it

Earlier, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Maine) said the government should step in if necessary to prevent "a fuel oil price gouge on Americans."

The Justice Department only last week announced an investigation of the price increases. The department wants to know if the major oil firms raised prices according to some agreement That would be illegal.

Other congressional news:

Doctrine: Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash) said the administration has provided "no evidence" of any new Red threat that would justify hasty approval of the Eisenhower Doctrine. He made the statement as the combined Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees called Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to testify on the doctrine

Brennan: Sen Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis) said he would oppose the nomination of William Brennan to the Supreme Court But he acknowledged Brennan would win nomination. McCarthy said Brennan has waged a "guerrilla war" against congressional committees that expose Communists

Reserves: Congress appeared on the verge of a new fight over the draft and military reserves The fight is being started by Army orders for sweeping changes in the current military reserve program Some congressmen questioned whether the Army could order the changes without congressional approval.

Financial: Seven GOP senators introduced a bill that would establish a national monetary and financial commission The citizens' commission would conduct an overall study of the nation's financial system President Eisenhower called for the study in his State of the Union Message

OPPOSED TO KADAR — Rep. James T. Patterson, Connecticut Republican, plans to introduce a joint resolution in Washington calling upon President Eisenhower to break off diplomatic relations with Communist governed Hungary.

Pittsburgh Water Bill Increased By PUC Order

HARRISBURG (UP)—A Public Utility Commission order will increase the city of Pittsburgh's water bill by $158 143 annually and reduce charges to suburban Allegheny County consumers by $50,704 a year, starting Feb 1

The commission late Monday ordered the South Pittsburgh Water Co. to revise its contracts with the city by Feb. 1 to reflect the upward revision for Pittsburgh customers and the lower rates for the water company's suburban subscribers

The order also authorized the firm to recover $197,700 from the city to cover the 15 months since Nov. 1, 1955—the date when the utility's rates were frozen at current levels pending completion of a PUC investigation

The company also was directed to credit bills of 53,000 metered suburban consumers by $63,400 for the same period in line with an order to set uniform systemwide rates except for a reduced contract discount for the city of Pittsburgh

Under the changes announced by the PUC, the city's added annual cost is $17,588 less than the $175,731 sought by the company It amounts to a cut from 18 to 4 per cent in the contract discount allowed Pittsburgh for billing 25,000 consumers in nine south side wards for utility - delivered water.

Torquato

in the past under previous administrations.

To bring it under specific control of the governor's office would require legislation But since the secretary of labor and industry is under the governor's jurisdiction we can assert control anytime we want to"

John R. Torquato, secretary of labor and industry, was intercepted by state police at the Breezewood Interchange of the Pennsylvania Turnpike last week while enroute from Washington, D.C to Johnstown and asked to call his office At Bradley's request he ordered the records turned over to the budget office.

Misunderstood Date

Both Bradley and Torquato agreed that the use of state police to contact the secretary was the result of a misunderstanding. Torquato said he and Bradley discussed the records several days earlier and Bradley apparently "misunderstood the date on which they were to be presented to Bradley"

Employes paid by the fund need not be cleared through the governor's personnel office before going on the payroll.

Officials in Torquato's department said he could not understand the action of the governor's office because "the fund has provided employment for job applicants when other departments could not handle them."

Steel Executive To Help Keep Plant in City

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa (UP) — William F McConnor, executive vice president of U S Steel Corporation's National Tube Division, says prospects of maintaining the firm's plant here are very good

The steel executive, however cautioned the Junior Chamber of Commerce Monday night he could make no promises.

McConnor reminded his audience that 11 years ago U S Steel announced it planned to close the Lawrence County operation. The plant was kept open he said, because of good labor relations, good leadership in the community and the know how of experienced labor.

McConnor said the plant's future depended on a continued market for seamless tubing, the ability to meet competition and the supply of skilled workers to maintain the efficiency of the plant.

New Ohio Governor in Warning to Gamblers

Will Close All Places Sheriffs Miss in State

COLUMBUS, O. (UP) — Republican Gov. C. William O'Neill, sworn in yesterday, called Ohio sheriffs to his office today to gain their support for absolute law enforcement.

The 40 year old governor, shortly before he took the oath, said he considered law enforcement one of the top problems confronting his administration.

He called last week for the sheriffs meeting as he issued a stern warning to commercialized gamblers not to "open up" in Ohio.

O'Neill said he wanted to make it "unmistakably clear" that if there is a move by gamblers to open up in any county and the sheriff fails to prevent it, the governor will act.

He added that he would make full and speedy use of the state's "padlock" laws which provide that the governor can request the county prosecutor to close up an illegal establishment if the sheriff doesn't do it.

O'Neill was expected to sign his first bill today, a measure to boost salaries of cabinet officials by a total of more than $100,000.

The measure, urged by O'Neill and passed by the Legislature at the opening of its session last week, would provide increases ranging from $2,000 to $18,000. The boosts included an increase to $30,000 for the state highway director and to $25,000 for the state mental hygiene director.

The governor had asked for the bill to attract outstanding men to his new administration.

Interim Gov. John W. Brown, who finished out the term of former Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche when Lausche resigned to take oath as United States senator, had promised to sign the bill, but the Legislature adjourned without sending it to Brown.

Cannot Qualify

O'Neill chose Charles M. Noble, former chief engineer with the New Jersey Turnpike Authority, as state highway director. But Noble cannot qualify for the job until he has lived in Ohio for a year and become an elector.

Nobe was expected to be listed as a "consultant" for a year at the director's salary, $30,000. A deputy director will assume the duties of director until the year is up.

Mother, Three Children Burn To Death in Fire

SALINE, Mich. (UP)—A mother and her three young children were believed to have burned to death in their apartment above a bar early today when fire raced through the bar and two adjoining buildings in downtown Saline.

Police said Mrs. Barbara Gibson and her children, Dianne, 3; David 1½, and Gary, 5 months, were known to have been in the apartment at midnight, three hours before the fire was discovered.

Fire departments from Saline, Ann Arbor, Milan, Clinton, and Pittsfield Township fought the blaze for more than two hours.

Mrs. Gibson, who was separated from her husband, lived with her children in an apartment over George's bar. The bar and the adjoining stores were destroyed.

The floor of the apartment crashed into the basement of the building and firemen began the grim task of searching for the bodies.

Five Promotions at Pittsburgh Steel Co.

Five promotions were announced today in the Production Planning Department of Pittsburgh Steel Co.

William A. Hattman, formerly superintendent of Sheet Mill schedules and services, has been named staff assistant to Kenneth F. Maxcy, Jr., manager of Production Planning.

Cecil A. Carroll moves up from assistant superintendent to superintendent of Sheet Mill schedules and services.

Howard S. Bush is the new assistant superintendent of schedules and services at the firm's Monessen plant. He formerly held a similar position with the company's Thomas Strip Division at Warren, O.

Also at the Warren plant, Donald F. Reese has been promoted to supervisor of service in the Thomas schedules and services unit and Harry A. Lawrence, Sr., has been named supervisor in the same department.

At Fairless Works

Hattman, who lives at 4137 Caste Drive, Overlook Acres, Pittsburgh, is a native of McKees Rocks. He worked for the Empire Steel Company, Mansfield, O. before joining the Production Planning Department of U. S. Steel's Irvin Works in 1939. From 1951 until he joined Pittsburgh Steel in 1954, Hattman was general superintendent of Sheet and Tin Mill planning at U. S. Steel's Fairless Works. He came to Pittsburgh Steel as cold mill scheduler.

Carroll, of Charleroi, RD 1, joined Pittsburgh Steel 37 years ago as rod mill weigher. He later served as an accounting department clerk, employment agent, assistant chief clerk, hot mill provider and assistant chief scheduler before being named assistant superintendent production planning in November, 1955.

Bush, of 688 Roosevelt Street, Warren, is a native of that city. He joined Pittsburgh Steel in 1939 as a shipping clerk, served 3½ years of Air Force duty during World War II in Europe and returned in 1945 to the position he held prior to his new promotion.

Reese, of 293 Ohltown Road, Youngstown, O. has been with Pittsburgh Steel since 1944. He started as a lab technician, served in the Army from 1945 to 1947. His production planning experience began in 1948.

Lawrence, RD 2, Levittsburg, O., also started in the Thomas Division Shipping Department. He completed a year of service before entering the Army in 1942. After service in the Pacific Theater, he returned to Thomas in 1945 and began his work in production planning.

St. Leonard's PTA Plans for Activities Here

President Joseph Campus outlined plans for the four remaining meetings of the school term when the St. Leonard Parent Teacher Association met on Sunday in the school auditorium.

The Rev. J. L. Conway gave the opening prayer and departmental reports were given by Mrs. Katherine Roddy, secretary and Mrs. Elsie Metzger, treasurer.

Among activities planned was a survey of the school to prepare a list of needed improvements to be completed during the year.

Fund raising projects were discussed. Mrs. Elizabeth Picchiarini conveyed the request from the executive board to promote a spiritual and social unity by forming groups of parents from the various grades to conduct bake sales, card parties and other events.

In order to encourage a greater responsibility of the parish toward the school it was decided to urge parishoners to become PTA members whether or not they have children in the school.

The unit received thank you notes from the eighth grade students for the Christmas treat of a movie and refreshments. Notes from the teachers and from Sister Theresa, formerly principal at St. Leonard, were read.

Program Chairman Mrs. Louise Treater introduced Father Conway as the speaker. He gave a talk on "The Mass", which was illustrated with slides.

Refreshments were served by the fifth grade mothers.

BULGARIA REVOLT UNDERWAY — 100 Army officers are reportedly leading an armed anti-Communist revolt centered in the Stara and Platina mountains in northwest Bulgaria (1). In Dimitrovgrad (2), three persons were killed and 20 wounded when workers in three factories clashed with police. In Poland, an anti-Communist group lynched the mayor of a town in the Lublin (3) area, and at Lodz (4), some 30 persons were arrested when 500 angry farmers took three Communist party officials and held them as hostages in a dispute.

Kadar Regime Puts Pressure on Workers

VIENNA (UP) — The puppet Janos Kadar regime is bringing heavy pressure to bear on rebellious Hungarian workers in an attempt to build up a new Communist Party, reports reaching Vienna said today.

There was no new information from Budapest on the imprisonment by the Communists of two Americans. Mrs. George Chapelle, of Milwaukee, Wis., and Richard Roraback, of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.

The Communist regime informed the U.S. legation in Budapest Monday of the arrest of Mrs. Chapelle, a 35-year-old free-lance photographer who apparently tried to smuggle herself into Hungary. Her whereabouts had been a mystery since she left Vienna Dec. 4.

Roraback, 26, and a Norwegian companion were seized by Communist Hungarian border guards last Saturday while trying to help Hungarian refugees across the Iron Curtain border, according to Austrian authorities. The Kadar regime has made no mention of the incident this far.

According to reliable reports reaching Vienna, the Communists have started using the threat of unemployment as a weapon to coerce workers into joining the "Hungarian Socialist Workers Party." Before the freedom revolt, the Communist Party masqueraded under the name of the "Hungarian Workers Party."

The reports said the Reds were using the key Csepel Island steel and iron mills as the testing ground for its new pressure tactics. Workers in the huge industrial island complex in the Danube River have been among the toughest opponents of the Communist regime.

The reports said the Communists have let it be known that workers who joined the party will not lose their jobs under the regime's "black new year's" decree of mass dismissals.

Party organizers have been agitating for weeks in an attempt to win recruits for the new Communist Party, which the government has declared would be the "only power" in Hungary. But they have met with little success.

Church Committee Results Announced

The annual election of the church committee was held at St. Leonard Church. Named to serve were Joseph Campus, Joseph Gouger, Dr. Thomas B. Herron, Edward Januszewski, Percy Moussiaux, Thomas Preston, James Tegnalia and Rinard Woods.

The men will serve a three year term.

Big Questions Over Birth of Princess' Baby

MONACO (UP) —The question of where Princess Grace's baby will be born was coupled today with an older question: When?

There was no doubt that time is drawing near for the arrival of the first-born of Prince Rainier and Princess Grace.

But, although elaborate preparations for the royal birth have been made at Monaco's maternity hospital, the expectant father switched signals Monday and said he would like the heir to the throne born in his yellow-walled palace.

Carpenters and painters began working on a spare room next to the royal couple's apartment overlooking the Mediterranean to convert it into a delivery room.

But the decision is not final. Palace sources said Princess Grace is still holding out for the clinic.

Doctors agreed the matter must be decided within the next week to 10 days—if not sooner.

Telephone Worker Is Hurt

PORTSMOUTH, O. (UP)—Robert P. Cole, 28, Seymour, Texas, was treated at a hospital today for injuries received in a rock-throwing incident involving an Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. repair crew.

A company spokesman said Communications Workers of America union pickets harrassed a cable repair crew.

Cole's condition was reported as "good."

Mitchell Conley, company supervisor, said about 10 strikers and sympathizers attacked Cole, inflicting bruises and a possible concussion. Conley said the group also threw rocks and snowballs, forcing the repair crew to abandon its work. Conley said two company trucks were damaged.

Contempt Charges

Conley said contempt of court charges will be filed against the demonstrators for violating an injunction governing conduct of strikers.

Although cable cuttings have caused a virtual blackout in Scioto County, the incident Monday night was the first reported violence since the exchanges reopened in mid-December.

Monday night City Council took no action on a union request for a public hearing to consider firing City Manager Robert Layton.

Council said if an AFL and CIO joint labor committee would present specific charges it would consider a public hearing on the proposed firing.

Both sides are scheduled to meet with federal mediators on Thursday.

Love, Marriage Mix On Phone

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE, ENGLAND (UP)—Love and marriage tangled over a telephone here Monday with both physical and financial consequences.

Eric Monton, a married insurance man, paid a $5 fine for breaking the nose of the lover, 18-year-old Thomas Cooper.

Monton told the court he waited nervously 20 minutes outside the telephone booth to call the hospital where his wife was to give birth. Cooper was inside pleading with his girl friend to patch up a quarrel.

Finally Monton said he could stand the suspense no longer. He pulled open the door, dragged Cooper out and slugged him.

Mrs. Monton and child were reported doing fine.

Negro Leaders Plan 'Shame' Campaign in Deep Southern States

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UP) — Negro leaders of the Deep South's bus integration movement embarked today on a Gandhi - like non-violence policy which they hope will "shame" white extremists who dynamited churches and homes in Montgomery.

The Rev. Martin Luther King, leader of the Montgomery movement, declared the policy Monday night at a mass meeting of Negroes and then collapsed and had to be helped to his seat.

"If anyone be killed, let it be me," King said in an emotion-charged prayer.

About 500 Negroes attending the rally acclaimed King's leadership with a deafening outburst of shouting and weeping that lasted 15 minutes.

King said segregationist extremists would have to dynamite 50,000 homes—not just two—to dissuade them from their cause.

He told the mass meeting the unity of the Negroes "will soon cause the oppressor to become ashamed of his own methods."

Four Negro churches and the homes of two ministers were bombed early last Thursday. King said the violence was "the most startling and appalling expression of man's inhumanity to man."

Buses at Montgomery remained idle today as a result of the bombings but in Tallahassee, Fla., buses rolled without incident under a new law giving the operators responsibility for keeping the races seated separately.

Officials in Birmingham, Ala., gave no indication of when a hearing will be held on the federal suit of Negroes challenging the constitutionality of the bus segregation law of that city.

The suit also seeks to block city trials of the 21 Negroes arrested for defying the city law in an integration test last Dec. 26. The trial has been set for Feb. 11.

Fayette Men Denied Trials

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UP)—Tony Puskarich, South Union Twp. tax collector, and Louis Ritz, Uniontown automobile dealer, have been refused new trials on charge sof receiving stolen goods.

Puskarich was found guilty of purchasing $80 worth of liquor stolen from a Uniontown nightclub oy Ray Chamberlin and David Gibson, who were sentenced to long terms for a series of roberies. Ritz was convicted of buying stolen tires from the same men.

Judge S. John Morrow, who denied the new trials, said he would sentence Puskarich and Ritz at a date to be set by Dist. Atty. Joseph E. Kovach.

Leading Agent in Prudential District

Charles W. Schwer, of 913 Oakland avenue, Charleroi, has been named the Prudential Insurance Company's leading agent in the Monessen District during 1956, it was announced today by Roland Bunting, manager.

Besides Monessen, the district includes branch offices in Charleroi and Brownsville.

Schwer's total sales amounted to $577,000 with annual premiums of $16,000. He has been an agent of the district since 1955.

New School Plan in State Is Misunderstood

HARRISBURG (UP)—A state education official today blamed misunderstanding of the term "service" for much of the opposition to the State Council of Education's proposed regional school service area plan.

The proposal, slated for legislative consideration this session, would eliminate county school boards by establishing the state's public school system under 47 regional school service areas, each headed by a regional director.

Dr. Clarence E. Ackley, deputy superintendent of public instruction, said that "there is confusion among local school administrators in regard to what an educational service actually is."

Ackley explained that the proposed service would be a special aid to teachers and school administrators to generally improve the instruction and well-being of pupils throughout the state.

"An educational service is not, as many people seem to think, a special subject like remedial reading or penmanship taught to pupils by a specialist," he said.

Ackley said the contemplated plan is an effort to provide all sections of the state with the variety of specialized educational needs that should be available to the districts. He said that many of the weaker counties are unable to perform this service.

"Those who feel that the office of the county superintendent, as presently organized, is providing all districts with counselling in such areas as financial planning, transportation, curriculum development, publications, audiometric testing, instructional supervision and mental health need to review their facts," he said.

The Public Instruction Department's Advisory Committee is scheduled to meet again Jan. 17, when it will prepare its recommendations for approval of the Council of Education when it convenes Jan. 30.

U. S. to Benefit by Disarmament Plan

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UP) — Most atomic experts agree that both the United States and Russia have enough big nuclear weapons now to wreck each other's cities and perhaps doom mankind.

The new U.S. proposal to freeze stockpiles of atomic arms would not change that fearsome fact—unless and until it led to agreements to cut back existing arsenals of H-bombs and A-bombs.

But it would, observers here feel, have a vital immediate bearing on the fate of mankind. It would:

—Keep stockpiles from pyramiding to the point where their sheer size and the relative cheapness of atomic destruction would intensify the threat of war. A vast stockpile might tempt a maniacal dictator to strike an atomic Pearl Harbor blow.

Restrict Atomic Powers

—Prevent other nations from joining the United States, Russia and Great Britain as hydrogen and atomic powers. Many thoughtful persons have suggested in recent years that this is one of the most pressing reasons for seeking atomic control When 20 or 30 nations have nuclear arms policed control will be harder than ever to achieve —Channel precious atomic resources to fruitful peacetime uses, which, by improving the lot of man generally, would curb impulses toward war.

If the nuclear freeze went into effect immediately, it would leave the United States with a considerable edge on Russia, Washington observers believe

Ahead In Numbers

Although both countries possess the power to inflict near-knockout strategic blows against cities and bases, the United States is believed to be far ahead in numbers of comparatively small tactical atomic weapons for use against an enemy's military forces.

But even the United States has far fewer of these weapons than the armed services want. It has been said that the military has an atomic "requirement" for every weapon, except the hand grenade, which now uses TNT or other chemical high explosives.

The U.S. proposals will not, however, be going into effect any time soon, and this country, Russia, and Britain presumably will continue in the meantime to develop and stockpile nuclear weapons of all practical sizes and kinds.

U.S. Proposals

The U.S. proposals to the United Nations call for:

—Advance notice and registration of all nuclear tests, with limited international observation. This might serve to keep tests from snowballing to the point where they posed a serious radiation threat to humanity. It might also keep any one atomic power from achieving in secret a scientific or technical breakthrough that would give it unquestioned military supremacy.

—International control of future production of atomic explosives with such materials being used exclusively for peaceful purposes. This is the atomic weapons stockpile freeze first proposed by President Eisenhower last March 1.

Prohibit Test Explosions

—Ultimate prohibition of all nuclear test explosions

—Eventual reduction of existing stockpiles.

President Eisenhower has said this country is no longer concerned with making bigger H-bombs but is concentrating on perfection of nuclear weapons for defense. He said also that a development aim is to wed the H-bomb to intercontinental missiles.

Atomic Commissioner Thomas E Murray said last year that the United States can afford to stop testing H-bombs now But he called for intensified testing of tactical nuclear weapons which he said should be stockpiled in the "tens of thousands" for use if necessary in "limited atomic war."

The United States does not yet possess such battlefield weapons in any such numbers, and neither, presumably, does any other nation.

FBI Adds Man To Its List of 'Most Wanted'

WASHINGTON (UP)—The FBI today placed Alfred James White, alias "The Killer", on its list of 10 "most wanted fugitives."

White, 53, has been sought since he fled from West Hamlin, W. Va., in June, 1954, to escape prosecution for firing at a state police officer during an attempted lumber yard robbery.

The FBI said White, who also uses aliases of Alford White and Al Whiting, is a master safecracker and daring gunman with a police record dating back to 1922. It includes convictions for auto theft and bank robbery, and one jail break.

White was identified as one of two robbers who tried to hold up the West Hamlin lumber yard.

The FBI said White, flushed from a lumber shed, opened fire on an officer and then escaped by diving fully clad into a nearby river and swimming 400 yards downstream.

Pageant Festival at Farm Show Tonight

HARRISBURG (UP)—The accomplishments of the Keystone State in the field of agriculture will be presented in pageant form tonight during the annual rural talent festival at the 1957 Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Several hundred farm folks will participate in the colorful festival, which this year has the theme "We Have it—in Pennsylvania."

Despite Monday's snowfall and cold weather, crowds estimated at 85,000 toured the 14 acres of buildings on opening day. Show officials said the snow only slowed down arrivals and the peak was reached in early afternoon.

Gov. George M. Leader formally dedicated the 41st show Monday night before a capacity crowd of 10,000 in the large arena. He said the show proved that "Pennsylvania farmers are right out in front...we ought to go as far in the next 40 years as we have come in the first four decades of the Farm Show."

The governor, who in private life operates a poultry farm and hatchery, will be given the degree of Honorary Keystone Farmer" by the Future Farmers of America Wednesday. He is one of 37 farmers, soil conservationists, businessmen and schoolmen who will receive the degree in recognition of outstanding activity in promoting agriculture and aiding agricultural education.

The Farm Show Commission was advised that Byron A. Martz, 17, Dalmatia RD 1, will be named Pennsylvania FFA "Star Dairy Farmer." Martz, a senior at Mahanoy Joint High School, Dalmatia, was selected over several hundred vocational agriculture students in the state.

He is president of the Northumberland County 4-H Dairy and Baby Beef Club. The FFA said he has a herd of four cows and seven heifers, all registered purebred Guernseys; more than 500 Leghorn pullets, two Angus steers, some sheep, and projects in oats, wheat and corn. Receipts from his projects in four years have totaled almost $15,500.

Penn Dairies, Inc., York, won the gold medal award in pasteurized milk with a score of 95 points out of a possible 100, followed by: Lenkerbrook Farms, Harrisburg RD 3; Levengood Dairy Farms, Pottstown; Harrisburg Dairies, Harrisburg; Meadow Gold Dairies, Pittsburgh, and Sunny Slope Dairy, Spring City RD 1.

First place gold medals went to these three producers who retail raw milk:

Bryncoed Farm Highspire; Silver Lake Farm, Norristown and Turtle Spring Dairy, Philipsburg.

Mental Health Support Urged By State Group

HARRISBURG (UP)—The president of Pennsylvania Mental Health, Inc., a statewide voluntary association, today urged continued bipartisan support for the state's mental health program and urged the 1957 Legislature to provide "adequate funds" to meet the needs for the care and treatment of the mentally ill.

Charles H Frazier said that as a result of the mental health legislation and appropriation voted by the 1955-56 Legislature "We are now beginning to see a modern program of treatment rather than custody in our state mental institutions."

"For the first time in our state's history," Frazier said, "the trend in the number of patients in state institutions has leveled off and, as a matter of fact, has started downward."

Frazier said, however, that the solution to the problems of mental health is in a long range program and he called upon the present Legislature to continue its efforts.

Guard Against Poison From Carbon Monoxide

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

With the doors and windows closed tightly against the outside cold this time of year, your home might be inviting an unwelcome caller — carbon monoxide.

Probably the most widespread poisonous gas connected with everyday living, carbon monoxide is invisible, tasteless and odorless. Even in small amounts it can be deadly.

Faulty heating equipment accounts for about one-fourth of our yearly toll of deaths from carbon monoxide. It may be a dirty or badly adjusted furnace, boiler, fuel burning stove or space heater. Even a faulty refrigerator can be blamed.

A clogged vent, chimney or flue pipe might prevent gases from being properly released, and carbon monoxide might flood the home.

This gas can poison you by combining with the hemoglobin in your blood. It prevents blood from carrying oxygen to the body tissues.

Development of certain symptoms should lead you to suspect that carbon monoxide fumes are present. These include headaches, dizziness, drowsiness and nausea. You may become irritable, perspire suddenly, become mentally dull and absent-minded. Your legs may ache and you may have hallucinations.

Sometimes you can recognize asphyxiation by carbon monoxide by the cherry-red color of the victim's skin, eyelids, lips and ears.

A person suffering from poisoning by this gas must have fresh air immediately. If the room can't be ventilated quickly, take him outside.

Apply artificial respiration if he is breathing weakly or not at all. Use plenty of blankets and hot water bags to keep him warm and let him rest just as long as he wants.

Even though only one part of carbon monoxide in 700 parts of air can be fatal, exposure to this gas doesn't always mean death. In fact, only about one out of 200 persons exposed to carbon monoside fumes is a fatality.

Paris physicians recently reported they have been able to revive victims of carbon monoxide poisoning more rapidly with an intravenous drug, cytochrome C, than with the usual procedures. In 20 cases of coma, they said, the drug was effective within 8 to 30 minutes.

What It's Like Married to TV Comedian

NEW YORK (UP) — What's it like to be married to a comedian?

Well, according to Mariam Paar, wife of Jack Paar, it's just like any other connubial assignment—except that your husband is apt to wake you up at two in the morning to test out a joke.

"We're a pretty closely knit family—Jack, myself and our 7-year-old daughter, Randy," said Mrs. Paar today. "We don't live the sort of life people think celebrities lead.

"Jack is a great one for staying close to our Westchester home. He doesn't stay up late, he intensely dislikes cocktail parties and he hates coming into New York City."

Still, Mrs. Paar confessed, their domestic life does have its offbeat moments.

"I'm his sounding board," she said. "Whenever he has a new joke or a new bit, he tries it out on me first. Sometimes, he'll think of something while he's dreaming and he'll wake me up to ask me if its funny.

Objections Overruled

A MAJORITY of the Monessen School Board should be complimented, in our opinion, for reassigning Armand Niccolai as coach of the High School football team for another year over the objections of two members, Nicholas Cullen and Romeo Furio.

In opposing Coach Niccolai, Mr. Cullen made the point that Niccolai's "type of football has not produced the teams Monessen should have". He gave as another reason what he said has been a "drop in attendance" at High School games.

Here, we think, is a good sample of the kind of thinking on the part of educators which has in many places distorted the place of athletics and inter-school competition in the education program.

A school or college coach is not hired — or should not be hired — for the purpose of winning games. He is hired as a teacher. And the fact that his tool is an athletic game, instead of a laboratory, does not — or should not — alter the fact that he is a teacher.

It makes not the slightest difference whether Mr. Niccolai's "type of football" wins games although our sports editor has cited the record to show that it does. What counts is what the man is teaching boys by means of football, and on that score even Mr. Cullen had no objections to offer. We hear nothing but the best about Mr. Niccolai's example and influence.

As for the attendance at games, this is the poorest ground of all on which to criticize a scholastic coach. For whether the public finds inter-school games interesting or not is purely incidental to the purpose for which the games are played. And it is perfectly conceivable to us that a coach could have a successful season without his team winning a game and with attendance confined to the student body.

We hope the School Board continues to keep its perspective as to the place of athletics in the school system.

Going Forward

SEVERAL Donner avenue business firms are starting off the new year with major improvement programs which have been duly reported in The Daily Independent's news columns.

Donner and Schoonmaker avenues and their connecting streets need more of this and soon if this area of the City is to hold its own as a commercial center. As the business heart of the community, the downtown district needs to wage persistent war against creeping obsolescence. The alternative is to give way before the competition of other communities and of newer shopping facilities on the outskirts.

The responsibility largely belongs to individual business firms and stores. The City government can help, of course, by such measures as the proper control of traffic and provision of off-street parking facilities. Cooperative efforts through such organizations as the Chamber of Commerce also are necessary and helpful.

But it is the individual business man who must decide for himself whether he is going to keep pace with the community and meet his competition or whether he is going to drift. And the number of decisions which are made for progress control the rate of the community's progress.

It is worth noting, we think, that all of the retail improvement programs announced in recent weeks have been undertaken by locally owned firms. We hope this year will see some of the chain organizations moving to modernize their Monessen outlets. These stores do a large portion of the retail business volume in most communities these days and they, too, must resist any tendency to drift.

The President's Trip

PRESIDENT Eisenhower's flying trip to the portions of the western plains most severely affected by the prolonged drought will serve several valuable purposes.

Not the least of these is the opportunity it provides for the President to see for himself some of the conditions about which he has been reading in official reports.

Also, the President's trip will help to direct public attention to a creeping national tragedy of which too few Americans have been fully aware. In the East especially, where we know little or nothing about drought, we need to understand the awful implications of what has been happening in the great Southwest.

Roscoe Drummond, a regular contributor to this page, is accompanying the President on his inspection trip, and his first dispatch appears in nearby columns. We think it deserves an attentive reading.

No doubt Mr. Eisenhower will have some specific recommendations to make concerning further efforts to relieve the stricken area and to start to rehabilitate it.

One thing seems sure: the American people cannot spare any effort to prevent this once-rich agricultural area from becoming a desert wasteland. And that is exactly what is in prospect.

Merry-Go-Round—

U. S. Won't Build Dam For Nasser

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Policy-makers have been burning the midnight oil at the State Department trying to figure out how to spend the $400,000,000 President Eisenhower wants for the Middle East.

Mr. Pearson

They have definitely decided, however, not to finance the Aswan Dam for dictator Nasser. They figure this would guarantee Nasser's power for the next 10 years. Instead, they will offer Nasser economic aid, but only on a year-to-year basis.

The first big grant will probably go for clearing the Suez Canal. Uncle Sam expects to get stuck with most of the $40,000,000 bill for opening the Suez again to seagoing traffic.

The State Department also expects to take over Britain's annual $35,000,000 subsidy to Jordan. This is considered urgent to keep Jordan from being annexed by next-door, Communist-dominated Syria. Our policy-makers are particularly anxious to prevent two military airfields in Jordan, now used by the British, from falling into Red hands.

Present plan is to offer economic aid to all Arab states, including Syria. It is expected, however, that Syria will spurn U. S. aid and turn to Russia instead.

Congressman Cannon Fires

Venerable Congressman Clarence Cannon of Missouri got in a few last licks at his old Republican rival, Dewey Short, at the secret caucus of House Democrats.

Short was defeated by 36-year-old Charlie Brown, Democrat, last November. He had served 24 years in the House of Representatives; Cannon is now starting his 35th year.

"Mr. Chairman," boomed Cannon in the closed-door session, "Missouri now presents the Eighth Wonder of the World.

"This is a great occasion, Mr. Chairman," declared Cannon. "For the young man I am now presenting defeated a Rhodes scholar, a man who spoke four languages, an incomparable rabble rouser who was a great catch-as-catch-can.

"I am speaking, Mr. Chairman, of the accomplished, the unbridled, the irresponsible Dewey Short.

"Congressman Brown did the impossible. He defeated a man who had been here for 24 years, representing a district that the state legislature had gerrymandered for the Republicans.

"It was a remarkable achievement," continued Cannon, "in a year when the President exerted such vast influence that he carried the district by the wide margin of 30,000 votes."

Freshman Congressman Brown, nonplused by Cannon's bombastic introduction, rose to acknowledge the applause and laughter.

"Did I do all that?" he uttered. "Congress is indeed the pinnacle of a mountain, for one must climb hard and high to get here."

Hero in London

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is no exception to the human animal's capacity for self-delusion.

Dulles has been excoriated by Britain's Conservatives for softness toward Nasser and denounced by Laborites for being too militaristic. Despite that, Dulles considers himself a hero to the British people.

Questioning Dulles at a session of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Rep. Wayne Hays (D., Ohio) recalled that on Oct. 11 President Eisenhower denied at a press conference that there was any misunderstanding with the British over Middle East policy. Yet shortly afterward the British marched into Egypt without notifying the U. S.

"What I want is some reassurance that your evaluation of the situation today is better than the administration's evaluation prior to the election?" demanded Rep. Hays.

"I could produce, if there were time," replied Dulles, "letters covering the period you speak of in which high officials of the British government expressed their very great appreciation for what we were doing and our cooperation with them.

"I can say, when I was in London at most of these conferences — I went three times to London — most of the time I was, for the first time in my life, as far as England is concerned at least, a good deal the popular hero.

"People gathered in the streets and even applauded when I appeared."

With Eisenhower—

The Tragedy of the Drought

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

SAN ANGELO, TEXAS — Nothing could be more useful than for the whole nation to see through the eyes of the President and the reporters accompanying him the grim, heartbreaking, spreading tragedy — and havoc — of the worst drought in the recorded history of the whole Great Plains.

Mr. Drummond

It is bad, very bad. The frank judgment of those who know is that the worst consequences are still to come.

As a people we have a tendency to turn our hearts and our pocketbooks inside out in a rush to aid the victims of a Japanese earthquake or of Soviet repression in Hungary or of a whole continent on the brink of economic collapse, as in the Marshall Plan. That is right. Few would want it otherwise. When mankind is not kind, it is less than man.

Tragedy at Home

But tragedy at home must be just as appalling — and just as appealing. Parched, barren land, parched barren incomes, parched, barren farms and farmers, ranches and ranchers, acre to acre, mile to mile, horizon to horizon year after year, days without end and the end is not yet.

Many Americans have not felt the pall and the magnitude of this national disaster, this human disaster. For one thing, it has grown and grown steadily and is still growing. It has crept up on us and now for seven long, painful years, going on eight, the drought has kept up without surcease.

It is well that the President is viewing it first-hand, from the air from where the dried up wells and empty river beds look like pockmarks on the moon, from the land which is so grassless, lifeless and dust-blown, and from the words of the men and women and families who can no longer make their way, who have now lost nearly everything but the mortgage. It is to be hoped that the rest of the nation will view it with him.

Mr. Eisenhower has come to the scene of the beginning of the unended drought in Texas. Here along the Rio Grande southeast of San Antonio, it started in 1949 and has lasted longer, been more intense and spread farther than anything America has ever experienced. Trees that would normally grow six to 12 inches a year have stopped growing; once vast and verdant oaks are dying by the tens of thousands.

Topsoil Blown Away

Now the drought and the winds which blow the precious thin-layered topsoil from the land have extended over a 1,000-mile wide belt from Mexico to Canada. They cover the western two-thirds of Texas, most of Oklahoma, eastern New Mexico, southeastern Colorado, western Kansas, parts of Nebraska, Montana, the Dakotas; also Missouri, Wyoming and Arizona. The president's plane will take him across much of this blighted "desert."

Mr. Eisenhower will see that the drought hovers over and suffocates more than half of the farm land west of the Mississippi.

He will see the plight of hundreds of thousands of the 20 million people whose lives and livelihood are desiccated by this calamity.

He will find that in Texas alone 60,000 families have been forced to move from their farms to cities to try to find jobs or to commute long distances to jobs. He will find that nearly 100,000 Texans are eating federal relief food. Here in the area of San Angelo, once the sheep and wool capital of the nation, the sheep herds have dwindled 75 per cent in seven years and not more than 20 per cent of the cattle remain.

No one farmer, no one community, no one state can lick this problem. It is a vast regional problem and it is in large part a national responsibility. It is caused by forces presently outside human control (artificial rainmaking may ultimately put it in control) and was abetted by Federal government's pressure for the growing of more and more food during the war.

Wind Erosion

About 14 million acres of land in the drought belt, unsuitable for anything but periodic heavy-rainfall cultivation are now being cultivated. It is nearly a 11 subject to, disastrous wind erosion during long droughts and until water resources are assured it needs to be converted to grassland.

The seven-year blight already extends to nearly two million acres of this farmland and to the farmers whose temporary "good earth" is good no more.

And what's ahead? Here is a frank forecast from the Department of Agriculture: "Reports indicate that an additional 29 million acres of land are in condition to blow in the winter and next spring."

This is what the President will find.

Truman Backs Ike in New Political Surprise

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP) — Former President Truman has put his political leadership to a new severe test which may obtain another painful repudiation. Surprisingly, Mr. Truman has turned away in this instance from his long-time ally and foreign policy adviser, former Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Mr. Wilson

Mr. Truman's ups and downs have excited American politics for years. He has specialized in the unpredictable and the impossible. Mr. Truman's biggest UP was nomination and election to the vice presidency in 1944, which led shortly to the White House.

He established himself as Democratic Party boss in 1948 by coming from nowhere to win the presidential election from Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Mr. Truman hand-picked Adlai E. Stevenson, of Illinois in 1952 to be his successor. Stevenson promptly lost the presidential election to resigned General Dwight D. Eisenhower. Mr. Truman ceased at that point to be the Democratic Party boss.

Convention Rebuffs Truman

If there was any doubt about that, last year's Democratic National Convention clarified the situation by nominating for president and vice president the two Democrats Mr. Truman most actively opposed.

Seldom has a past president so boldly risked his prestige nor has any in modern times been more coldly rebuffed by a national convention. Mr. Truman is a tough politician, however. He does not bruise nor embarrass easily.

So, today he is out in front of his party — way out in front — with a summons to Congress to give to President Eisenhower the blank check on Middle East policy which he requested the week Congress convened.

Moreover, Mr. Truman wrote in an article distributed in Sunday's newspapers that the United States should have acted forcefully long ago with the fleet to prevent delivery of Communist arms to Egypt or to other Arab countries.

Supports Ike Doctrine

As for the new Eisenhower Doctrine, Mr. Truman wrote: "If I now were a member of the U.S. Senate, I would support the request for congressional authorization to use the armed forces of the United States against any Communist or Communist-dominated aggressor in the Middle East.

"And I would quickly approve granting him the funds he seeks to extend economic (and military) aid to help the Middle East nations maintain their independence.

"The situation is too dangerous to delay action on these requests for any partisan or political considerations."

Acheson told congressional questioners a few days earlier that the Eisenhower Doctrine was "far too hazardous a course even to be hinted at."

There must be delay because Congress wants to ask a great many questions.

Mr. Truman has taken publicly a position on the Eisenhower Doctrine far beyond that to which the Democratic congressional leadership has permitted itself to be committed.

If the Democratic Congress approves the doctrine as stated by Mr. Eisenhower and as approved by Mr. Truman, the latter's prestige as a party leader will regain a lot of shine and substance at the expense of the party leadership in Congress.

Bicycle Takes Credit For Liberating Women

By MARGARET LATROBE

The Bicycle Institute of America has just found out who is responsible for women's freedom of dress.

"If Grandma didn't have the spunk to go bike-riding in her bloomers way back there in the 90's there is considerable doubt that the young ladies of today would be wearing strapless bathing suits, baring their midriffs, or sporting the tricky shorts-and-bra costumes that are so familiar to us now," says the Institute.

Mrs. Latrobe

Although New York's Amelia Bloomer stitched up the first frightening outfit called "bloomers" in 1849, the first American bicycle didn't roll from the manufacturer's plant in Hartford, Conn., until 1877. What Mrs. Amelia's Turkish pantaloons beneath a short skirt and blouse were intended for between '49 and '77 is lost in the dusts of history. But by the 90's when bicycling became fashionable for women, young ladies took a quick gander at the only available costume — bloomers — and cried out for something with chic.

They got it. (Fashion never slams a Dior in the faces of female clothes customers.) A special cycling costume was soon available, and a thing of beauty it was. "Very wide knickerbockers, not unlike the bloomers in shape; stockings, high boots or shoes, a simple shirt with collar and tie; and a soft felt hat without trimming." Later, states the Institute, knickerbockers were superseded by divided skirts. And not a moment too soon, if you ask me.

Once the girls got the handlebars in their fists, their lists of sports grew longer — golf, tennis, swimming, horseback riding. And their costumes got shorter — skirts an unbelievable four inches from the floor, then knee-length with rolled hosiery, then slacks, shorts and the regrettable halter, reaching a bare minimum in the Bikini swim suit.

Though suffrage, two wars and a depression may have influenced fashion in their own ways, the bicycle industry claims the original credit for getting women out of stays, hoop skirts and crinolines.

"Yes, the bicycle has played a commanding role in women's long fight for freedom of dress," says the Institute. "Being fickle creatures, what will women do next?

Come to think of it, gentlemen, they've already done it. Right straight back to the flounces, waist-cinchers and crinoline department. Except when bicycling, of course.

Green Is Free in $1,000 Bail

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Congressman William J. Green was free in $1,000 bail today pending trial in the Federal Court at Scranton on a charge of accepting a $10,000 bribe from a Hartford, Conn., contractor in connection with construction of the $34-million U. S. Signal Corps Depot at Tobyhanna, Pa.

Green, Philadelphia Democratic city chairman, was one of 12 persons indicted by a federal grand jury at Scranton which investigated alleged irregularities in connection with the depot's construction. He was accused of accepting the bribe from heating contractor Frederick J. Raff, who held a multi-million dollar contract for the depot. Green also was indicted on a charge of writing performance bonds on contracts.

The warrant for Green's arrest was not issued until last Friday by Federal Judge John W. Murphy to permit the congressman to be sworn in for his fourth term in Washington.

Refuse Statement

Green and his attorney, John P. Walsh, went before U. S. Commissioner Henry P. Carr here Monday to post the bond put up by a bonding firm. Both Green and Walsh refused to make a statement.

Another of the defendants, former Democratic Congressman Herbert J. McGlincey of Philadelphia, posted $1,000 bail for trial last Wednesday.

A motion to dismiss an indictment against the John B. Kemmel, Inc., painting contracting firm and its president, John B. Kemmel of Philadelphia, was filed in the federal court at Scranton. Defense attorneys contended in the motion that the indictment, charging a $9,000 fraud in connection with a painting subcontract, did not relate the facts sufficiently to constitute a criminal offense against the government.

The motion contended the Kemmel firm was a subcontractor to the Consolidated Construction Co. of Woodbury, N. J., and had no contractural relations with the government. It also alleged the first three counts of the indictment were nullified by the statute of limitations.

State Drafting Standard Bridge Plans for Future

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Highways Department announced a new concept in bridge design today—a standard span to fit all types of state and federal highway expansion.

Highways Secretary Joseph J. Lawler said the department was drafting standard bridge plans, including a variety of details to meet all conditions, which could be readily inserted into new contract drawings. Lawler said previously the department had designed individual bridges as the need arose.

He said the new system would eliminate the time-consuming process of designing new bridges as highways were constructed and old spans replaced.

Lawler said the idea for standardized bridge plans was conceived during flood emergency in northeastern Pennsylvania two years ago when the department had to wait months for bridge plans to be designed to replace spans swept away in the storm.

The standard bridges will fit into the federal interstate system the state plans to construct and also will be adaptable to all situations of the state highway system.

COCOA, Fla. (UP) —Pan American World Airways representatives worked today to avoid a threatened strike by some 400 civilian maintenance workers at the guided missle base in Cocoa.

Roraback, 26, and Einar Raus, a Norwegian, both members of the international rescue committee, were captured after they crossed the border canal near Andau, Austria.

Niccolai Defended by Coaching Rival

Armand Niccolai, Monessen's embattled football coach, received a big boost the other day from his arch business rival, fiery Rab Currie of Charleroi. Speaking in Belle Vernon, Currie bristled: "There's no finer coach than Armand Niccolai. Any school in the WPIAL should be proud to have a man of his stature, both as a coach and as a teacher. Yet every year he has to sweat out his coaching job; even after his team posted an 8-2 record. How can a man work under the continual pressure of a one-year contract and the threat of being fired? . . . I tell you something is wrong in scholastic sports when situations like this exist."

Donora's City League basketballers are making plans to challenge Monessen dribblers to a game in the near future, with all proceeds to go toward the March of Dimes . . . They sounded pretty good too, and we hope they turn out for other Greyhound home games . . . Charleroi Junior High basketballers have now extended their winning streak at home to 94 straight games. And Coach George Chacko's boys wll be favored in all remaining home tussles this season.

Rumor Links DeLuca with Boston U

A Boston newspaper recently carried the rumor that St. Vincent's Al DeLuca is being considered for the football vacancy created at Boston University when Buff Donelli moved on to Columbia. Significantly, Donelli and DeLuca are close friends . . . Monessen High coach Frank Janosik doesn't go along with the critics who claim both Monessen and Charleroi played sub-par games against Brownsville in recent days. "They are under-rating Brownsville," contends Janosik. "Coach Alex Barantovich has a better team than we expected. His boys are aggressive and well coached. We anticipate plenty of trouble from them in our return match at Brownsville."

It seems we misled some of our readers with an item in this column recently, referring to the Harlem Globe Trotters appearance at the Monessen High gym on Feb. 6. We reported that all tickets would be priced at $3, which would mean that the early birds would get the choice seats. Some folks felt that meant that an early arrival at the gym would insure a better spot. Actually all seats are reserved. However the better seats are being sold first. So it's to your advantage to make your purchase now if you intend to sit in on the show. There are still lots of good ducats available.

Mike Booth Recalled by Navy

Mark (Mike) Booth, who resigned recently as assistant football coach at Charleroi to accept an administrative job in Wilougby, O., school system, has had his plans changed. The U. S. Navy Dept. ordered Mike to report for active duty immediately at Newport, R. I. Booth is a lieutenant commander with 15 year's service in the Navy . . . Incidentally Booth is hoping that his job will be held open at Willoughby.. His Navy orders call for a tour of at least one year . . . Two interested spectators at the Holy Name banquet in Twin Coaches last Sunday were Charleroi footballers Myron Pottios and Bill Pentz. They had their heads together with the main speaker, Paul Hornung of Notre Dame, and everything appeared most chummy.

Campanella Laughs Off Cut in Salary

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK, (UP)—Happy-go-lucky Roy Campanella laughed off two cuts today "because the one on the hand hurt the most and it's all healed now."

The "one on the hand" was an operation necessary to remove bone chips. The other was a $5,000 salary slash which means he'll receive "only" $37,000 to catch for the Brooklyn Dodgers next season.

"I just feel so good today," gurgled the roly-poly receiver in his high-pitched voice, "that I feel like I could play forever."

Campy admitted that he figured the Dodgers would win the pennant again next season despite the loss of Jackie Robinson.

1956 His Bad Year

"Sure, he'll be missed," said the chubby catcher. "But they missed me last year and they won."

Roy, three-time Most Valuable Player in the National League, was referring to a season in which he hit only .219 and because of his crippled hands was not highly effective in any way.

Campanella underwent surgery on his right hand after the Dodgers' post-season tour of Japan.

"Last season it hurt so bad I couldn't hardly grip the bat," he recalled. "But I've been swinging a bat in the basement and there honestly, the hands feel great and isn't any pain at all.

"Of course," he quipped, "I always say it feels good when there is nobody pitching to me. But, honestly, the hands feel greata nd I'm highly optimistic."

Precedent In His Favor

Campy has precedent on his side as he looks forward happily to the prospect of a fine season. In 1950 he batted only .281. The next season he won MVP honors. In 1952 he dropped to .269 and bounced back the next season to again take most valuable honors. Then it was down again in 1954, when he batted only .207, so he came back to take the MVP prize again in 1955.

"So this should be my 'on' season," he chuckled. "And one thing sure, it's going to take them a while longer to get me out of there. As long as I feel as good as I do, and have the desire to play that I have, I'm gonna keep right on playing baseball."

Martinez Scores TKO in Sixth

TORONTO, Ont. (UP) — Vince Martinez' punching power from added weight kept his status as a welterweight contender intact today while his latest victim, Spain's Pedro Jiminez, was left to admit that he "learned a lot."

It was a painful lesson for Jiminez, former Spanish middleweight champion, who lost on a technical knockout to Martinez after six rounds of their scheduled 10-rounder Monday night at Maple Leaf Garden.

A crowd of 2,000 saw Martinez, the fifth-ranking welterweight from Paterson, N. J., give Jiminez such a bloody beating that 16 stitches were needed to close the deep, blood-spurting cuts on his right eyebrow, chin, and forehead between his eyes.

Cro-Ams Keep Rolling

Top Cips For 11th Win in Row

To no one's surprise, the undefeated Cro-Ams posted their eleventh straight win of the City Basketball League season last night, mauling the Cips, 66-45.

In other games at the Junior High gym, the Ozarks belted S-L, 54-25, and Big Five tripped the Fuocos A. C. 45-39.

City League activity will resume tomorrow when the Yellow Jackets will challenge the Cro-Ams at 7. Other games will pair East End against Big Five at 8 and Viaduct against the Cips at 9.

Last night the Cro-Ams had no trouble, piling up scoring advantages in every period of the swift-moving game. Only one time out was taken throughout the tussle even though the Cips played with just five men.

Dominico Scores 24

Sam Dominico looped in 24 points for the pace-setters. Nick Mahalko had 15 for the Cips.

Big Five stayed in the first division by turning on the steam in the second and third periods to handle Fuocos.

John Bronson tossed in 15 points for the winners while Jerry Destefano and John Trembush each had ten for the Fuocos.

The Ozarks had an easy time with S-L, coasting all the way.

Ed Sance had 16 points for the Ozarks while George Diehl chipped in with 14. For S-L, Tom Kovach was high with seven.

Globetrotters Have Compiled Great Mark

For years, the Harlem Globetrotters have been regarded as basketball's top attraction.

It's no wonder then that their appearance on February 6 at the Monessen High gym is stirring unusual excitement hereabouts.

Neither is it any wonder that the Trotters have such a fine reputation. Down through the years they've won far more than their share of games.

Abe Saperstein, astute manager of the Trotters, organized his first team during the 1927-28 season. During that campaign his boys won 101 games while losing just a half dozen.

Since then the Trotters have won better than 90 per cent of their games in every season but two during the war years.

All-Time Totals

The all-time totals 5,395 wins and just 303 losses.

That brilliant record has been posted only against the finest opposition.

Included in the Trotters trophy case are awards from basketball tournaments all over the world.

The Trotters annually travel thousands of miles to appear before millions of fans. In one season, they trekked no less than 125,000 miles to play before more than 2,000,000 fans.

But the Trotters are more than a great basketball team. They are showmen deluxe.

Spectators are always entertained when they watch the Trotters. A series of comedy routines spice their appearance.

All Big Men

The current Trotter edition proves the theory that basketball is a big man's game. No member of the squad is under 6-3.

And most of the players are college men.

As usual, the Trotters have been winning with monotonous regularity again this season. They will come to Monessen with a long win streak.

What few losses are tagged on the Harlem record annually usually come late in the season during an extended tour with the College-All Stars or during a series with the professional champs. Even then the Trotters lose only occasionally.

The Trotters will meet the famed House of David team in their Monessen appearance. As an added attraction, there wil be pre-game entertainment, including a table tennis exhibition, wild west lassoers, a juggler and unicyclist.

Tickets for the show are now on sale at agencies throughout the district. The event is being sponsored by the Monessen Knights of Columbus.

Charleroi Game Tickets on Sale

Tickets for the Charleroi-Monessen basketball game on January 22 will be placed on sale again tonight at the MHS gym.

The sale will take place in the gym corridor before and at half-time of this evening's tussle with Washington.

Armand Mori, Monessen faculty-manager, said that a limited number of reserved seats are still avaiable for the Charleroi tussle. Only two tickets will be sold to a customer and all purchasers must be adults.

Information on the student sale will be announced through the schools. As usual, one side of the gym wil be reserved for students and general admission holders.

Fullmer Agrees To Meet Greaves On January 28

SALT LAKE CITY (UP)—Gene Fullmer's first fight since winning the world middleweight title will be a non-title bout with Wilf Greaves of Pittsburgh here, Jan. 28, it was announced today.

Dave Reynolds, Salt Lake Boxing Club president, said Greaves' manager Jake Mintz agreed to bring the fight to Salt Lake City's Fair Grounds Coliseum after failing to get the event for Pittsburgh.

Steel City promoter Ben Anolik had offered Fullmer $7,500 and a percentage to meet Greaves in a relief show at Pittsburgh.

Fullmer turned down the deal to satisfy home town fans who want to see the new champ in action here.

The Boxing commissions ruled the Fullmer-Greaves bout must be a non-title affair. First crack at the middleweight crown belongs to the man who lost it to Fullmer, Sugar Ray Robinson.

NEW YORK (P)—Kansas and North Carolina placed 1-2 in the United Press college basketball ratings today for the sixth straight week while Seattle University made its first appearance in the top ten this season.

The 35 leading coaches who rate the teams for the United Press based their votes on games played through Saturday, Jan. 12. They gave Kansas 26 first-place votes and a total of 330 points.

North Carolina received six first-place votes and 311 points. North Carolina was only 19 points behind Kansas after trailing by 50 last week.

Kentucky remained third and Southern Methodist fourth, leaving the top four positions unchanged from last week.

Wake Forest headed the second 10 teams. Canisius, California, Bradley, Ohio State, Brigham Young, St. Louis and West Virginia followed in that order. Oklahoma A&M and Oklahoma City University tied for 19th.

Singel Sets Mark In Office Loop

Bernie Singel rolled a sparkling 240 game last night to feature an evening of clean sweeps in the Pittsburgh Steel Office Bowling League.

Singel scored seven straight strikes, then spared in the next two frames and wound up taking seven out in the tenth. That gave him a 240 total.

All matches ended in whitewashes as Order handled General. Shipping rolled over Payroll and Engineering topped Production.

Other scorers in addition to Singel were John Lipnicky, 164-424; Larry Evancho, 194-517; Tom Sendek, 205-514; Jim Salay, 183-518; Leo Lewitsky, 203-503.

Sensational Player To Feature Game At Greyhound Floor

James (Beanie) Gordon, probably the finest basketball player in the WPIAL this season, will lead once-beaten Washington into Monessen tonight for an exhibition contest with Coach Frank Janosik's spirited Greyhounds.

The long-time rivals are both strong contenders in their respective sections and they each own perfect league records at the moment.

The visiting Prexies have handled two Section 4 tests without a scare while the Hounds have waded through three Section 5 assignments successfully.

Washington has a much better exhibition record, though. Coach Bill Laughlin's Prexies won five of six tuneups. Their only loss was to Uniontown by a misleading nine point margin.

A good part of that fancy record must be credited to the brilliant Gordon. He has averaged close to 25 points per game this season.

Top Playmaker

In addition the 5-10 senior is the team's playmaker and top defensive player.

Gordon is no stranger to the MHS gym. Besides appearing here in the past with the Prexies, he took part in last year's Ozark Basketball Tournament. Although competing with college stars in the senior division, he barely missed winning honors as the tourney's most valuable player!

Gordon is one of three seniors in Washington's starting five. The others are Bob McConell, 5-11; and Jerry Wise, 6-0.

Big Chuck Smith, 6-3 junior, and speedy Don Ferrell, 6-1 sophomore, complete the starting lineup for the Prexies.

Top reserves include Ken Gamble, 6-1 sophomore; Henry King, 5-9 junior, and Chuck Doerfler, 6-0 senior.

Heavy Favorites

The Prexies are heavy favorites to win the Section 4 race for the seventh straight time this season.

Monessen, boasting an overall record of 8-4, will start the usual lineup.

Frank Crisi, 6-0, and Dick DiBiaso, 6-1, will be at the forwards; Carl Crawley, 6-0, will be at center; John Bogovich, 5-10 and Maurice Mathieu will be at the guards. The sixth man will be Joe Kurey, 6-0. All are seniors with the exception of DiBiaso and Kurey, both juniors.

In the past, Monessen and Washington have met 24 times in basketball with the Hounds winning on 18 occasions.

Rostraver at Ramsay Tonight

Game Will Decide Lead in Tight Section 17 Struggle

Rostraver High's ambitious basketballers invade Ramsay tonight for an important Section 10 test.

The Leps have won two of three league assignments to date. They handled Dunbar and Ligonier easily, while dropping a tight four point decision at Hurst.

The Ramsay dribblers are atop the standings with a perfect 2-0 record. The Bobcats own decisions over Hurst and Ligonier.

So far the Section 10 race has gone pretty much according to form. Observers predicted a mad scramble, with most contenders losing away from home.

That means a Rostraver win tonight will take on added significance. The eventual champ will have to pick up a decision or two on the road.

Other Section 10 games this evening will send Scottdale to Ligonier and Derry Twp. to Hurst.

Close Race

Three of those teams are still very much in the race. Scottdale, with a 2-1 record to date, hopes to win at Ligonier while contending Hurst (2-1) is a slight choice over invading Derry Twp. (1-1).

Over in Section 5, the big game will match unbeaten Charleroi at winless Bellmar.

The towering Cougars — regarded as solid favorites to earn league laurels — have handled two league assignments to date.

On the other hand, the disappointing Bellmar basketballers have dropped three tussles.

Still the Canes have some hope. They are usually tough to beat on their home floor.

Other Games

Other Section 5 games will show Monongahela at Brownsville and Donora at California.

Brownsville, loser in two of three games so far, is favored to get by Monongahela while contending Donora is a slight choice at California.

The Dragons, with a 2-1 record, are still very much in the Section 5 race. A win over the Trojans will boost their stock even higher.

No games are scheduled in Section 17 tonight.

Here's the way the Daily Independent sports department picks tonight's games:

Washington at MONESSEN (4)
CHARLEROI at Bellmar (12)
Monongahela at BROWNSVILLE (10)
DONORA at California (3)
Rostraver at RAMSAY (6)
SCOTTDALE at Ligonier (5)
Derry Twp. at HURST (5)
Season record: 63 right, 23 wrong.

Form Swimming Class for Men

The Recreation Department has added a men's swimming class to its winter schedule, according to Director George Nicksich.

Beginning Thursday at 8 p. m. a weekly swimming class will be held at the Junior High pool for men.

In charge of the class will be Joe Gladys, a swim teacher at Monessen High School.

Nicksich said the Recreation Department hopes to conduct the swimming sessions every Thursday. That, of course, will depend on the number of men taking part.

Hope to Head Off Union of Pro Cagers

BOSTON (UP)—President Maurice Podoloff of the National Basketball Association made a conciliatory offer to the players of his league today even as they gathered to talk about forming a union.

Podoloff said he would suggest to the players at a meeting after lunch that they elect player representatives in a "secret vote" on each team, and that these representatives be allowed to attend the annual meeting of the league's board of directors in April.

Player requests and complaints could be "ironed out" at this meeting, the league head said.

The players, gathering here for the annual All-Star game at the Boston Garden tonight, contend that Podoloff has ignored their petitions in the past. At their scheduled meeting, they planned to discuss these grievances and consider whether joining a labor union would help them attain their requests.

May Head Off

Should the pro court players formally affiliate with organized labor, they would become the first pro athletes in history to do so—a move that Podoloff's offer apparently was designed to head off.

Major grievance of the basketball players was the "no strike" clause inserted in every NBA contract this season. The players contend it is illegal.

Other "gripes" included the "whispering fine," by which basketball referees can fine a player money for various actions or comments. The fine is usually whispered to the offending player as the referee passes him on the court. The players want no fine imposed unless accompanied by a technical foul, called at the time.

Panthers Upset Syracuse at Field House

By UNITED PRESS

The Pitt Panthers upset Syracuse, 76-64, Monday night at the Memorial Fieldhouse.

Duquesne University, taking over the same court tonight as host to DePaul, hoped everything will go as planned in its favored role.

Pitt started its second team against the Orangemen in a surprise move. The subs matched the Orange point for point, before they were removed with about seven minutes gone. The regulars then held the Orangemen in check to end the half tied at 36-36.

With 8½ minutes left, the Panthers, led by sophomore Don Hennon, John Riser and Bob Lazor, moved to a 60-50 lead. They stretched the margin to 12 tallies at the final buzzer.

Top Scorer

Syracuse's Vince Cohen preserved high scoring honors for the visitors with 26 points. Hennon notched 19 markers to lead Pitt, followed by Riser's 18 and Lazor's 17. Riser's tallies advanced his career scoring record to 944 points, the second senior this season to pass the old high total. Lazor is the new record holder with 1,027 points.

The victory boosted Pitt's season record to nine triumphs against six setbacks. Syracuse has an 8-3 card.

Tonight Duquesne will be matching its 8-4 record against DePaul's 4 victories and 7 defeats.

In other games on tonight's card, California plays at St. Vincent, Alliance at Slippery Rock, Edinboro at Grove City, Indiana at Clarion and Thiel will be at Gannon.

Few Changes in Football Rules

NEW ORLEANS (UP) —A brief meeting of the NCAA football rules committee was scheduled for today, with a formal announcement of any changes adopted to be released after a final get-together Wednesday.

Fritz Crisler, University of Michigan athletic director, said only a handful of rule changes are before the committee because coaches "believe we have a good game as it is."

He said the committee has rejected several proposed changes and will act later on other suggestions.

Mantle Returns First Contract to Yankees

By UNITED PRESS

Mickey Mantle is shooting for a $60,000-or-better salary and by way of warming up for it he has fired his first contract right back at the Yankees—unsigned.

The Yanks' first offer, containing a $5,000 raise, left him cold, Mantle admitted Monday night in Baltimore where he was honored as baseball's outstanding hitter in 1956.

"I sent the contract right back to them," he said. "It wasn't signed, so I guess they knew how I felt about it."

While the 25-year-old center field sensation who won the American League's "triple crown" last year did not reveal terms of the contract he sent back, it was learned that it called for a $5,000 raise over his 1956 salary estimated at $32,500.

The Yankee offer would boost Mickey's pay to $37,500 this year.

Hasn't Announced Figure

"I haven't announced the figure I have in mind to any of the newspapers and I don't intend to," Mante declared. "But that contract they sent me was nowhere near it."

As a banner box-office attraction who batted .353, drove in 130 runs and hit 52 homers to lead the league in all those departments last season, as well as win the circuit's Most Valuable Player award, Mantle feels he's entitled to at least $60,000.

The Yankees realized he probably would turn down the first offer but they wanted to establish a price from which they could bargain. The highest salaried Yankee player currently is Yogi Berra, who will receive an estimated $55,000 this year. Joe DiMaggio's $100,000-per annum was the highest player salary ever paid by the club. Mantle and the Yankees probably will get together in the $45,000-$50,000 range.

Next move is up to the Yankees.

Other Club Signings

Elsewhere in the major league orbit, some of the other clubs were reporting more progress.

Pittsburgh announced the signing of first baseman - outfielder Bob Skinner and third baseman Gene Freese. That gave the Pirates a total of 10 players under contract.

Two of Brooklyn's standbys, catcher Roy Campanella and pitcher Carl Erskine, agreed to terms. Both received pay cuts in the face of disappointing performances in 1956. Campy's salary was sliced from $42,000 to $37,500 reportedly while Erskine dipped from $25,000 to $22,000.

The Washington Senators announced the signing of pitchers Bob Wiesler, Pete Ramos and Ralph Groves, outfielder Dick Tettelbach and infielders Jose Valdivielso and Tony Roig. Those six were the first Senator players to agree to terms.

Outfielder Jim Rivera became the fifth member of the White Sox to sign, following two rookies who agreed to terms earlier in the day, pitcher Bill Fischer and shortstop Don Prohovich.

To Name Elliott California Coach

BERKELEY, Calif. (UP) —University of California officials were expected tonight to name Pete Elliott of Nebraska as head football coach.

Elliott's name has been mentioned as the possible successor to Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf by sports writers here and in Nebraska, but Cal officials have refused to budge from the "no comment" seat.

However United Press learned that Elliott is scheduled to fly into San Francisco at the same time the announcement is scheduled tonight.

Waldorf gave up the ghost last fall while the Bears were stumbling through their worst season since the "wise walrus" took over in 1946. During his tenure he took Cal to the Rose Bowl three straight years—but college alumni have notoriously short memories.

Iowa State Slows Down Game To Upset Kansas, 39 to 37

By UNITED PRESS

Thundering upsets that rocked both Kansas and Kentucky left North Carolina today with the only perfect record among the nation's major college basketball teams and with a golden opportunity to seize the No. 1 national ranking.

Lightning struck at Ames, Iowa, in the form of a last-second, 20-foot basket by Don Medskers to give Iowa State a 39-37 upset of Kansas, the country's No. 1 team, for Kansas' first loss of the year in 13 games.

And at New Orleans, Tulane led almost all the way to upset Kentucky, the nation's No. 3 team, 68-60, for the first time since 1938—leaving Coach Cliff Wells to gasp, "This hour will do us the rest of our life."

Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain, Kansas' sensational sophomore who leads the nation's scorers, was held to just 17 points by Iowa State but, even so, nearly saved the Jayhawks when he tied the score at 37-37 on a pair of free throws with seven seconds remaining to play.

Sweet Revenge

But then Iowa State drove down court and the 6-foot, 8-inch Medskers cut loose with his game-winning shot from near the jump circle as the game ended. It was sweet revenge for Iowa State, which bowed to Kansas, 58-57, in a game in the Big Seven pre-season tournament last month.

Five-foot, 8-inch Gary Thompson of the Cyclones stole the show from the gangling Chamberlain, piloting their slow-down strategy by frequently holding the ball in mid-court while his mates jockeyed for position and also taking game scoring honors with 18 points.

For Kentucky, Monday night's upset was the third loss in 14 games. Tulane went in front, 8-6, in the early minutes, boosted its margin to as much as 17 points, and then stood off a Kentucky rally that cut the deficit to 60-56 with 1:25 remaining. The Green Wave used only one substitute, and he didn't come in until the final 42 seconds.

Good Shooting Average

Tulane, hitting 39 per cent of its shots, was led by 6-4 Calvin Grosscup of Auburn, Ind., with 23 points while Jerry Cox topped Kentucky with 16.

These two surprises put things squarely up to second-ranked North Carolina tonight when it visits its arch-rival North Carolina State. Coach Frank McGuire's Tar Heels boast a 14-0 record but fear this road game against its bitter foe, even though State has only an 8-6 record so far and will be missing scoring star John Richter, who injured an ankle.

If North Carolina can win tonight, it will then have a two-week rest before plunging into the final eight games of the regular season, all against teams it will already have beaten before.

There are few insects that can hear, but the greater number, including flies, cannot hear at all.

Pirates Sign Freese, Skinner

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates today announced the signing of third baseman Gene Freese and first baseman-outfielder Bob Skinner.

The players, now with Havana in the Cuban Winter League, came to terms with Pirate General Manager Joe L. Brown who is touring the off-season circuits.

Freese, 22, played with Pittsburgh after coming up from Hollywood of the Pacific Coast League last season. He batted .208 for the Bucs in 65 games after batting .274 with the Stars.

Skinner, 25, was a .202 hitter for the Pirates in 113 games during the 1956 campaign.

The Pirates have now signed 10 players to 1957 contracts.

Record Steel Production Hit In December

NEW YORK (UP)— The American Iron & Steel Institute reported Thursday that America's steel furnaces turned out 10,840,000 tons of steel in December, a record for the month.

The December output brought total production for 1956 to 115,218,604 tons, the Institute said. In 1955, the steel industry produced an all-time record of 117-million tons and industry leaders predict this record will be broken in 1957.

The Institute said December production was more than 300,000 tons greater than the 10,503,519 tons poured in December, 1955.

In the final quarter of 1956, including 12 consecutive weeks of capacity-plus operations, a quarterly record of 32,444,013 tons was set. This compared with 31,251,967 tons in the former record fourth quarter of 1955 and 20,167,419 in the third quarter of 1956.

Chou Returns To Warsaw for Polish Talks

WARSAW (UP) — Communist China Premier Chou En-lai, having won Polish Communist Leader Wladyslaw Gomulka into accepting Moscow's leadership of world Communist policy, returns to Warsaw today for further talks with Polish leaders.

Gomulka, who has led Poland's campaign for greater independence from Soviet domination, bowed to Moscow Monday in an election speech.

"Our foreign policy must be such that it strengthens the position of Poland in the world and also strengthens the position of Poland's friends, headed by the Soviet Union," Gomulka declared.

Political observers said the words were probably gratifying to Chou. The Red China leader came here from Moscow last week to talk with Polish leaders, hoping to convince them they should not stray too far from Kremlin rule in their search for a more democratic form of Communism.

Just Didn't Want His Name Showing Up

EL PASO, Tex (UP)—Nurses at El Paso General Hospital revealed Monday night that a 43-year-old woman got mad at her boy friend and used a flatiron to remove his name that was tattooed on each of her legs.

The woman succeeded in taking off the names, as well as several inches of skin, nurses said.

She walked into the hospital Monday with second and third degree burns on each leg.

She said she got mad at her boy friend Sunday night and decided the best way to remove the tattoos was by ironing them off.

"You know how it is, honey," she told a nurse. "I just don't love him anymore."

"I don't know how it is, but we treated the burns anyway," the nurse said afterwards.
